

Barbara White

Barbara White is a semi-retired executive coach with many years of experience in multiple industries and disciplines. Barbara's background in human resources, organizational development, coaching, and business is broad and deep. Among the roles she held were Vice President of Human Resources, North America at Dun & Bradstreet, Vice President of Human Resources, North America for Pfizer Consumer Healthcare, a member of the leadership team of Pfizer's Worldwide Organizational Effectiveness and Consulting Services Group, and Prudential Healthcare Senior Director of Diversity, Inclusion, and Executive Recruiting. Barbara's first career was in finance. She had many roles including Chief Financial Officer of Teach for America. She began her career as an auditor for KPMG.

Barbara has a MS in Organizational Development from American University, received a BA in Accounting from Rutgers University, and is an inactive New Jersey Certified Public Accountant.

Her clients have been in many fields including healthcare, pharmaceuticals, higher education, and finance.

Barbara is based in New Jersey, but has deep family roots in Orange, Virginia, where she spent time every summer when she was growing up. She has been delighted to use many of her skills in her role as Vice President of the Montpelier Descendants Committee.

When she is not working with the MDC she has multiple interests, and her favorite activities often include her sons and their families.
